So i was thinking especially now when your still in the SVN state.

Wouldent it be worth to add an Auto update feature so whenever a new release has come the program notifyes the user of the program?

Or you could run manual update checks from the menu?

As for gba linking, why not activate it with a debugger and the users could to enable it and use and send if the logs for you. Could save a lot of time and users could do help test it to. Like i said just a thought.
